Get Fred Kent.

a leading authority on revitalizing urban public space,
and one of the foremost thinkers on livability, smart growth and the future of the city.

As founder and president of Project for Public Spaces, Fred is known throughout the world as a dynamic speaker and prolific ideas man. He challenges and inspires audiences to put common sense into practice and to trust in the ability of ordinary people to create meaningful public spaces for themselves. His topics, which turn commonly held assumptions upside-down, include:

- * How ego destroys cities
- * The "safety and security" myth
- * The benefits of Placemaking
- * Passion as the true test of a successful place
- * Why money is NOT the problem
- * The Power of Ten

Fred has acted as a consultant, facilitator, and speaker across the U.S. and internationally for 30 years. Audiences he has addressed include the Smart Growth Network, American Society of Landscape Architects, American Planning Association, American Public Transit Association, Federal Highway Administration, U.S. General Services Administration, Ford Foundation, New Jersey DOT, New York DOT, U.S. Forest Service, and the World Bank. He and Project for Public Spaces staff train over 10,000 people annually in the techniques of Placemaking.
